MGM Resorts International Employees Celebrate “Make A Difference Day” by Contributing Nearly 4,000 Hours at Community Nonprofits

Over 1,400 employees from Nevada, Maryland, Michigan and Mississippi joined millions of Americans in a common cause to help others

Las Vegas, October 31, 2016 – Hundreds of MGM Resorts International (NYSE: MGM) employees across the country united October 16 – 22 for IMPACT Week, the company’s annual six-day celebration of community service.

During IMPACT Week, which culminated with Make A Difference Day on Oct. 22, more than 1,400 employees across MGM Resorts properties contributed 3,989 volunteer hours of service to support the health and well-being of the company’s host communities.

“Make A Difference Day is the nation’s largest day of volunteering and represents the idea that we all have a responsibility to look after one another,” said Phyllis A. James, MGM Resorts’ Chief Diversity and Corporate Social Responsibility Officer. “We all have the power to do something, big or small, that can make a positive and meaningful impact on our community neighbors who are in need.”

Several years ago, MGM Resorts expanded the company’s recognition of “Make A Difference Day” after a number of employees expressed interest in participating, but were constrained by scheduling conflicts. This year, the company sponsored 64 volunteer opportunities at dozens of non-profit organizations in Nevada, Maryland, Michigan and Mississippi.

In Las Vegas, the company partnered with local nonprofit agencies and programs, including: Catholic Charities of Southern Nevada, Nevada Blind Children’s Foundation, Three Square Food Bank, Habitat for Humanity, Springs Preserve, Operation School Bell, Opportunity Village, and many more. Among other activities, the company’s Las Vegas employees packed 70,000 healthy meals for local children and helped restore 2,000 square feet of Lake Mead National Recreation Area from motor vehicle incursion.

Employees from the company’s resorts in Mississippi participated in a week-long volunteer fair where they made blankets to be donated to the pediatrics wing of a local hospital, wrote greeting cards for U.S. soldiers, participated in a blood drive and more. Further in November, several of MGM National Harbor’s top chefs volunteered their time and talent at Empty Bowls, a community event that benefits the Capital Area Food Bank, the largest hunger-relief organization serving the Washington metro area.
